Dear Vince Medina:

It is my pleasure to recommend my support for the new public charter school, ThrivePoint Academy of Nevada. As the president of the Latin Chamber of Commerce, I am committed to youth mentorship and inspiring young people to follow their passion. Examples of this are the LCC scholarships that we award each year helping students in under-resourced neighborhoods to prepare for college.

We also have created the Latino Youth Leadership Conference, a free six-day event on the campus of UNLV allowing students to participate in college firsthand while staying in the dorms. Additionally, Young Adult Facilitators work with Latino Youth Leadership Alumni to help them stay connected to reinforce the importance of staying in school and maintaining a healthy lifestyle free from alcohol and drugs.

I am happy to see the formation of a great school with caring educational leaders and teachers that will locate in an area of need in an underserved community to help mentor at-risk youth to become college and career-ready leaders in their local community. I believe that your personalized learning model designed to help high school students to get back on track, to recover academic credits, and develop self confidence in themselves both personally and academically is just what this community needs.

Your goal to bridge the achievement gap that many at-risk students in underserved communities by providing a mastery-based learning environment which engages hearts and minds, and helps students prepare for their next big step in life, whether through career or college readiness is the most effective way to help students succeed.

We look forward to working with you as your school develops and grows and we anticipate that you will play a meaningful part in developing and mentoring many at-risk youths to become successful leaders in the Decatur Crossings area of 89107 and of the larger Las Vegas community.

Sincerely,

Peter Guzman
